

ONLY ONE FARE REPORTED TODAY

HEAVY EASTERLY HOLDS BULK OF FLEET IN PORT FOR CLEARING.

The only arrivals reported here today was the halibuter Grand Marshal down from Boston to re-fit. She brought a small fare of salt and fresh fish, which went to the Gorton-Pew Fisheries Company. Due to the heavy easterly wind and rough weather outside, none of the seining or shore dragging fleet are operating today. Gill netters yesterday had fair hauls of fresh fish.

Catch Boo-hoo Fish.

The "boo-hoo" fish, a species of mackerel, have appeared in waters near New Bedford for the first time in 10 years. Shortly after the school was spotted, nearly 10 barrels of them were taken and brought to Woods Hole. A "boo-hoo" fish, according to fishermen, is a species of mackerel, called one of the five varieties of horse mackerel. Its description fits the frigate mackerel, which spawns in warm seas, but occasionally moves as far north as Cape Cod.

LOBSTERMAN KILLS ANOTHER

Sherman Merchant, 43, lobster fisherman at Kennebec, three miles from Machias, died in Calais hospital yesterday of the gunshot wound received yesterday afternoon while putting traps in Kennebec Bay. George Manchester, also of Kennebec, who surrendered to the authorities immediately after Merchant was shot and was released on bail for court appearance was alleged to have explained that he discharged his gun with the intention of frightening Merchant while they were engaged in a dispute over their traps, the rough sea causing the gun to point toward Merchant as the trigger was pressed. Merchant was said to have accused Manchester of destroying his traps.

Merchant, who was accompanied by his wife, was taken ashore and hurried to Calais.

TWENTY-FIVE AT BOSTON FISH PIER

SEVEN BEAM TRAWLERS INCLUDED IN THE DAY'S HUB ARRIVALS.

Twenty-five craft were tied up at the Boston pier this morning when business opened for the day, included in the list being seven of the Boston fleet of beam trawlers. The other arrivals were mostly off-shore draggers and shore fishermen, who found a good price for their fish today.

Haddock sold at $5.50 and large cod went at $6. There were no mackerel arrivals, the fleet being tied up at Gloucester waiting for better weather off shore.
